

ABSTRACT

A circuit for deriving higher orders of distortion from an input signal, that may form part of a predistorter for linearizing an amplifier. In one embodiment, the circuit has a mixer that generates a second order distortion signal, which is combined with the input signal in another mixer to produce a third order distortion signal.